Remarks of Mr. WOODS, of Garrard county, in the flouse of Representatives, upon the bill to establish a conventional rate of interest. Mr. WOODS said:

Mr Speaker: I rise under many, yes, sir, very nouv, embarrassments, arising from several eon

First, from not being in the habit of public eaking; secondly, for want of a proper knowl dge of parliamentary discipline; thirdly, for lack f this House, but more especially from being eart, to oppose gentlemen of such high order of alems as those who have just preceded me in

Mr. Speaker, what does the bill propose to do? Sir, it proposes, in violation of all former usages and precedents in the State, as well as most States n this Confederacy, to change the long tried and ong cherished usage which was founded on the wisdom and patriotic spirit of our fathers, and founders of the early principles of our beloved country, accepted by their sons for almost a cennry, to establish a conventional rate of interest t ten per cent., instead of six, as now established

Mr Speaker, it seems to me that a change at this time, at least when the monetary affairs of this country are in such a condition as they now re, to say the least, ought to be touched with reat care and caution. Mr. Speaker, what are the reasons given on this floor, by the advocres of this bill? They are various, but, as I conceive, all tending to the same end, and that end or purpose, as I conceive, nothing more nor less than the benefit of the money pobler. It is urged that nothing but this ruinou ate of interest will draw out the capital now lying in the hands of the money holders. The lack o such law has a tendency to drain the money from our State into other States where high rates outcrest are legalized, and that those States are eaping the great benefits of our monied capital Mr. Speaker, until I have some better reason than that, or any other which has been given on this floor, I would rather the money should go there, or even back to the bowels of the earth, from whence it was dag, than that it shall remain as i would under the provisions of the act now peul ing before this flouse. I have not yet heard, an believe it is not in the ingenuity of the most in elligent and learned gentleman in this House to show or prove that any rate of interest which is far above the value of labor, will be a blessing to the country. It may suit the Shylocks and the sharp, hard faces of the money lender, but that it will never, as contended, be a blessing to the mass es, is as clear a proposition as any that ever was and operation on the mosses. The next enquiry who are the misses? I hold the misses to be the greatest number. Well, who are they? I yould be very infortunate in coming to a conclusion who they were, if it did not turn out to b he laboring part of this community. What doe xperience teach? Mr. Speaker, I am an old man; what does m experience teach? It is, that labor has scarcel ver been worth six per cent. Therefore, I en one to no other conclusion than that the bi all prove false in its policy, ruinous in its effects and a curse to the laboring community.

How, Mr Speaker, will it operate? As I have already stated, we are a creation of interests, and make money worth more than any other thing. The greedy former will sell all his property, lands, shaves, and all implements of husbandry. teach? "Lead as not into temptation."

When our workshops become broker's house

we will then, when perhaps too late, acknowledg Mr. Speaker, I believe it is pretty much a conceded maxim, that all the wealth we possessorize notes from labor in some way or other. We have only that we shall reap the fruits of the earth be he sweat of our brow; all after that is hamma of our tellow men. What I overseach you i trade does not carich the community, but only changes the property; but what I make by laboudds that much more to the wealth of our com mon country. Admit this fact, and any policy that may have the least tendency to paralize the rin of industry, lessens our wealth as a nation nd ought not, for one moment, to be indulged in Mr. Speaker, our government, not like others s founded on the will of the people. That wil must be the law of the country to carry out the spirit of the government. That love of country can not be retained any longer than our institu-tions are just and equal, and whenever the masse-secome satisfied that principle has been violated. they become jealous of their rights, and the bond of our Union are weakened. On coming into the Senate a motion was made to strike out $5,000, and in sert $12,000, which earried, on the question shall the bill as amended pass, Senator Smith from Henry moved as an amendment that the keeper should furnish the convicts coffee once the convicts coffee once and are and are convicts coffee once the co keeper should furnish the convicts coffee once a day.

Senator HAYCRAFT, remarked: That he was in favor of the gentleman's amendnent and as figures were stubborn things he would furnish a few to show that the keeper could well afford to pay the $12,000 and also furnish coffee Yes, with cream and sugar in it, the very item the excess of the amount of school tax, paid by the county of Fayette, over and above the amount received by said county, shall be appropriated to this institution.

The substitute of Mr. JACKSON was again n any view of the ease the price proposed in the bill ($12,000) does not amount to one half o the profits. Gentlemen have urged that it should not be a money making scheme to the State, but the same gentlemen for party purposes are wiling to vote away $4,000 per year in order to ca rich a partizan.

It reminded the Senator of a historical fact in the reign of James 11, of England. When the no torious Jeffries the bloody brutal judge butcher d and banished thousands, the nation was no illing to make capital by the sale of the convicts But bestowed them upon ladies of the Queen's bed-chamber by hundreds of those unfortunate men, and those delicate ladies made fortunes by the sale of freemen. The Senator wanted Sena-tors to vote advisedly, and let it go to their con-stituents. Who it was and what party it was who at an early day of the session flinched at voting fifty cents more to a chain carrier, wer ow, perhaps, willing for party purposes and t fatten a political partisan to vote away $4,000 per year for four years-total $16,000 of the dear prople's money, and cover their retreat under the cloak of humanity. The present keeper is willing to pay the State $12,00%, and it is admitted even by Democrats, that he is competent and ha treated the convicts with humanity, and that be is a meritorious gentleman.

The Common Schools.

A strong evidence of the advancement of mer in the right direction is found in the general conviction that it is a duty to educate the sov ereign in order that the supreme power may be understandingly and wisely exercised. The peo ple are sovereign in this country; hence the duty of the legislature, through whose instrumentality the people act, to establish an educational system for those of the rising generation, who will have to perform the function of sovereignty. The common school system is, therefore, a subject of profound and intense interest to the patriot, the statesman, the philosopher, the moralist, and the christian.

On the details of the system its successful ope adapt the means to the end proposed. Vague pose we have in view. To teach reading, writing. al that he should possess power, unless with the Arnold's knowing how to read and write produce any good? Does the country derive Bny benefit many logical absurdities in its subject matter. from the intellectual power of the forger, the counterseiter, or the demagogue? Intellectual education is a lever, and nothing more. Like oth- the Charleston Standard, writing from Havana, er levers it may be used by the moral man to underdate of 10th inst., says: raise a house, to shelter the poor, or by a burglar to commit theft or robbery. To educate the moral faculty, therfore, is absolutely necessary in order to derive any advantage to the Common wealth from the increased power given by in tellectual culture in the common schools. What are the means of attaining that end? Moral teachers and moral books, unquestionably; and fortunately these are also the hest instruments for intellectual culture. Men of a high moral standing are, and ever have been the best teachers; and, although hooks of purely physical sense and abstract mathematies, including arithmetic, regard not the will of man, yet historical, geo graphical, and other reading hooks are filled with moral or immoral ideas. The books used in does not go out, and nobody knows that he is in schools should be most earefully examined and scrutinized before they are put into the hands of pupils. There is another consideration of a very grave character, which renders the examination of school books necessary in this country inasmuch as they have not been written south of Mason and Dixon's line. Most of the teachers in the common schools, we have reason to believe, are northern or eastern men, or from some of the hireling States west of the Ohio river. They naturally prefer and introduce the books which were used when they were taught. Neither the books nor the teachers are adapted to this latitude. The teachers raised and educated in the free States are freesoilers, or they ought to be, or Abolitionists; and if they have abandoned all the teachings of their youth, and all the principles of their fathers for gain, should that recommend

Many of their books require close examination and exscissoration. Many are meré eatehpenny publications, filled with vulgarisms, as well as solnot only diseard teachers unfit for us, and books unfit for any body, but we should employ teachers suited by education, principles, and prejudices, if you will, to our condition, and adopt and use such books as not only are written in decent English, but which inculcate such ideas on morality as nre right, and teach the duties the sovereign people have to perform. On morality, what code should be adopted to regulate and control the will of the future sovereign? It will be admitted, we hope, that he ought to be moral. That he should set counter with Senator Davis. Is it enjoin- which it refers induces us to publish the bill: ed upon the school teachers by law, as an imperative and indispensable duty, to read this short and comprehensive code, at stated and frequent periods, in the schools? If not, the first great object of common schools is neglected. Again, all, we believe, will admit that a sovereign should be well requainted with the form, construction, machinery and practical working of the government he establishes, just as an engineer should be with the engine he undertikes to manage. Does the comman school law make it the duty of teachers to read to their pupils the Constitution of the sons for the separation of these departments? Are the pupils taught the vital importance of the conscientious discharge of his highest exercise of sovereign power, voting at the polls? If not, the second great object of common schools is neglectty of the State to nominate a candidate for ed. Once again, is the pupil taught anything of the application of physical science to the common and useful arts of life? Do the teachers even use books which enable the pupils to form any just deas of a yard stick or a gallon measure? The boys in the common schools will be legislators, ndges, and executive officers. His argument will doubtless ap pear conclusive to those who agree with him in upposition to this absolutely necessary meas ure, but they do not so strike us. The conven tional interest bill has been lost, and with it the rope indulged in by some, that the constant de parture of money from Kentucky might he check ed has departed. The demagogueical cry of "op pression of the poor man" was raised, and as usu il many members of the Legislature bent the supple knee before the potent spell. Two Happy "Darkies from the South" Going to Join their Friends .- About four years ago Messrs. M. M. & F. T. White, doing husiness Walnut street, in this city, came into possessio of twelve negro slaves, men, women and children by becoming heirs to portions of an estate i North Carolina, and these generous hearted gen tlemen immediately took measures to give the entire "invoice" their freedom.
